Lynda Carter (BBC 1, 7.10)

IF YOU have had trouble keeping up with the high-speed action in Running Blind, you can get in the race again tonight.

For the adventure serial set in Iceland makes it to the finishing line (BBC 1, 9.25).

British agent Alan Stewart (Stuart Wilson)

END OF A RUN

has no chance to argue when Russian spy Kemnkin captures him and orders him at pistol-point to drive to his Icelandic headquarters. Torture is in the minds of Stewart's enemies, who are after the package he has been blackmailed by British intelligence to deliver and they are looking forward to extracting information in the most painful way possible.

Will Stewart survive? Don't miss tonight's gripping instalment.

Liberace gets hounded by a Muppet!

By TIM EWBANK
LIBERACE, the diamond-studded king of the key-boards, has played many a duet in his time.

But never with a dog.

The Muppet Show (ITV, 7pm) changes all that when Showmanship teams up with Rowlf, the piano-pounding puppet hound.

Liberace, 58, has been in showbusiness for 44 years. And he reckons his teaming with Rowlf to be the most extraordinary experience of his career—as well as a howling success.

SUPER stars... Liberace and the Muppets

EAGLE

He says: "In all my years in showbusiness I haven't experienced anything like it."

"Never before have I played piano with a hound, been ticked off by an eagle, and danced the Charleston with six-foot tall birds—well not the feathered variety!"

"But I have to admit I take a professional interest in Rowlf. He is a pianist after my own heart."

"Of course, his wardrobe is nothing like as expensive or lustrious as mine... But that doggone piano-player sure has style."

The whole of the second half of tonight's show is given over to Liberace as a tribute to America's larger-than-life star.

In quick succession he reels off Chopsticks, Misty, Five Foot Two, a piece of Chopin, and the Charleston.

Liberace, who boasts the most outrageously garish wardrobe of any star, first took up the piano when he was four.

He comes from a musical family—father played French horn in a symphony orchestra, mother the piano, and brother George the violin.

PAM IS POORLY

PAMELA Salem looks terrible tonight. And she's pleased about it.

Special make-up took away all her glamour for her part in Technical Hitch, the General Hospital story (ITV, 8pm).

Pamela says: "I look dreadful towards the end. Dead-white face. Bedraggled hair."

"But I don't care if the story demands it. I'm a girlfriend of Dr Gregory Knight (Carl Rigg). The girl claims she is ill."

DELIA SMITH
Stars slim

later. The only one who does not tuck in is Delia herself.

Delia, television's queen of the saucy, says: "I just slip down to the canteen for lamb chop and chips. I find that, on the day I'm working, I don't really want what I have just made."

That is why Delia, 37, manages to keep slim in spite of a healthy appetite. "I try to cut down on sweet things and just have a pudding or a cake once a week on Sunday," she says.

In tonight's Cookery Course lesson (BBC 2, 8.05), she proves that beanz meanz a whole range of nourishing dishes, not just a snack on toast.

On the menu are red

PERKING THEM UP

CUSTARD and curry, pizza and home-made bread. They're just some of the perks of working on Delia Smith's Cookery Course programme.

As soon as the show ends, camera crew and technicians make a dash to get their share of the goodies.

Anything ready for eating vanishes at once and the rest is taken home for

TELLY

A SEASON of six sexy films is launched tonight (BBC 2, 9.25) with the French-made Belle De Jour. It tells of the erotic fantasies of a beautiful bourgeois wife played by Catherine Deneuve.
